

Regenerating the land & our food system

A Women Caring for the Land event

Please join us at Morning Joy Farm in Mercer, ND for a women-centered day of learning about practices that fit your operation while meeting your stewardship goals. Annie Carlson and family run Morning Joy Farm – producing pastured chicken, turkey, and pork, as well as grass-fed lamb and beef. The Carlson's are passionate about using these animals to regenerate the land and keeping the next generation connected to their food system. Enjoy a family-friendly day on the farm, network with other women in agriculture, and consider the legacy your land will leave!

Wednesday, June 20th 9:00 AM - 3:00 PM
Morning Joy Farm
927 6th St NW
Mercer, ND 58559

9:00 AM Check-in and explore resources

*Coffee served

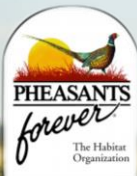

9:30 AM Women Caring for the Land learning circle

11:30 AM Lunch

12:15 PM Morning Joy Farm tour

2:30 PM Questions and adjourn

*Cost is $10 - Please RSVP by June 13th to Cayla Bendel at 701 - 498 - 2920 or cbendel@pheasantsforever.org

Photos courtesy of Lea Black

